

The Stan Erhart Band

By way of Kansas City and Chicago to San Francisco
Dishin' up Soulful Blues Roots 'n' More

"San Francisco singer/songwriter Stan Erhart exists in that blues-rock space occupied by John Hiatt, Warren Zevon, and Dave Alvin.

With his weary, gravelly voice, Erhart exists well outside of the pop mainstream, but should find fans among those who seek a rootsy, American style..." Doug Cornell, HitSession.com

Growing up on a Kansas farm exposed Stan to hard work, John Deere tractors, and the twang of country music. His musical curiosity was fueled early on by horn players, AM/FM pop music, and even a foggy memory of Louie 'Satchmo' Armstrong wiping his brow at a Kansas City performance. Stints in stage bands and garage bands ultimately led to his pursuit of a music degree, laying a foundation on which he continued to build through years of club work in Chicago... before moving to San Francisco to form his own band.

Today, The Stan Erhart Band utilizes the hardest hitting musicians in the San Francisco Bay Area to bring its soulful mix of Blues, R&B, Rock & Jazz to audiences. The group's signature grooves and dynamics, plus liberal doses of good will and fun, consistently raise energy levels. They enjoy playing live... and each performance counts!
